TO MARK TRAIL THROUGH TOWN

Directors of Susquehanna Trail Are Enthusiastic Over Interest Taken.

FREDERICK WILL HELP

Chamber of Commerce There Anxious to Mark Trail South of Maryland Line to Washington at Once.

Directors of the Susquehanna Trail Association are unanimous in their belief that that road should be routed as optional from Harrisburg and are enthusiastic that it pass through Gettysburg.

This was the report brought back to Gettysburg from Williamsport by Howard C. Mittinger, secretary of the publicity bureau of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, formerly the Boosters' Club.

Mr. Mittinger was in Williamsport last week, attending a banquet and meeting of the Williamsport Tourists' Association, of which most of the directors of the Susquehanna Trail are members. While in Williamsport, the publicity bureau secretary took the opportunity of placing Gettysburg's bid for an optional southbound route of the Susquehanna Trail before the road's directors.

"The Trail directors were enthusiastic when told that Gettysburg wanted to be considered on the famous north and south highway," Mr. Mittinger declares, "and promised to do everything to have the optional routes marked south of Harrisburg."

Mr. Mittinger was promised by the directors that within a week stencils of the Susquehanna Trail's emblem would be sent here, so that the road can be properly marked south of Harrisburg.

According to Mr. Mittinger the Frederick Chamber of Commerce is anxious to mark the Susquehanna Trail from the Maryland line, through Frederick to Washington, D. C., and to this end will appoint a committee to cooperate with a similar committee to be appointed from Gettysburg to mark the trail from Harrisburg to Washington through the two towns interested.

The Susquehanna Trail is without a detour across the state of Pennsylvania, Mr. Mittinger says, and is the logical road for all north and south-bound motor traffic.

Plans are now on foot, Mr. Mittinger declares, to have the Trail marked in New York state. Mr. Mittinger drove to Buffalo and Rochester last week over continuations of the Susquehanna Trail and was enthusiastic over the condition of the roads.

125 Out of 183 Freshmen at Annual Banquet of Yearlings

Usual Ruses Employed by First Year Men to Gain Entrance to Eagle Hotel Where Function Was Held; Co-eds Attend Unmolested; Police Called Several Times.

Despite the efforts of members of the Sophomores class to break up the function, members of the Freshman class at Gettysburg College held what was said by members of the class of 1927 to have been the most successful Freshman banquet ever attempted at College, at the Eagle Hotel, Saturday evening.

The yearlings had their banquet timed so that it would coincide with the time for the presentation of the Sophomore class play at Brua Chapel. This was said to be largely responsible for the fact that 125 Freshmen out of a total enrollment of 183 were present at the affair.

For the first time in the history of the College, it is said, co-eds were asked to attend the banquet this year. The members of the fair sex entered the hotel unmolested by the second year men who kept strict guard at all entrances from early in the day when word that the banquet was to be staged became campus rumor.

As usual the townspeople sided with the Freshmen and, if opportunity was afforded whereby they could help members of the class of 1927 to gain admission to the hotel without being caught, they assisted in thwarting efforts of the Sophomores to keep the Freshmen from gathering. From early in the afternoon until after the yearlings sat down to their banquet behind drawn blinds, Sophomores kept guard and the place teemed with excitement.

All of the usual ruses employed to gain entrance to the hotel without being detected by their upper classmates were used by the Freshmen on Saturday afternoon. Some dressed themselves as laborers and hotel employees and marched boldly into the place without being halted, while others assumed female roles to gain admission. In most instances the ruses were effective and completely fooled the watchers.

State, county and borough police were kept on the jump Saturday afternoon by calls from different sections of town when it was feared the upperclassmen were using too drastic methods with Freshmen who had fallen into their clutches. A number of Sophomores were picked up by the authorities, but were later released.

During the day when it became known to the second year men that the yearlings were going to have their banquet Saturday evening, all entrances to the Eagle Hotel were carefully guarded. Despite this fact, Freshmen found their way into the building.

Some of the class officers and students were captured as they were about to enter the hotel. They were promptly hustled into waiting automobiles and taken out of town. Some of the Freshmen, who fell into the hands of captors and were taken out of town, arrived at the banquet after the meal had been served, but were counted in with the total number present. All class officers and members of the committee in charge of the banquet returned to the hotel during the evening.

The banquet got under way about 7 o'clock, after a half hour's delay. A six-course roast chicken dinner was served, after which came toasts. In the course of the evening, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the College; Captain S. C. Thompson, of the R. O. T. C.; Professor Glen Trauger and Professor Joseph Jackson, of the College faculty, responded.

Leather-bound souvenir menus were presented to each of the diners. Officers of the class are Ray Van Horn, president; Mr. Zimmerman, vice president; George Scharf, secretary; Henry Meyer, treasurer, and Jack Crossdale, counselor. The banquet committee consisted of Richard Rex, chairman; Harry F. Gracey, Henry Meyer and Ray Van Horn.

John A. Stallsmith, well-known resident of Gettysburg and Adams county, died at his home on York street, Sunday evening at 11 o'clock of valvular heart trouble. Mr. Stallsmith was confined to the house for the past two weeks, but he had been in failing health for some time.

On Saturday, Mr. Stallsmith celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday, having been born February 16, 1850. Mr. Stallsmith was born on a farm in Mt. Pleasant township. TELL OF LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG

Four Men Who Were Present at Address Here Describe the Occasion.

With interest in the speech delivered by Lincoln at Gettysburg growing each year, persons who were present at the time he gave his address and recall the circumstances attending the day grow fewer each year. Few in Gettysburg recall the President's words, or retain a vivid recollection of how he appeared on that day.

Lincoln will ever be remembered for his Gettysburg address. But questions as to whether he read his speech from a paper, or whether he simply held the paper in his hand; whether the crowd of listeners was large or small, continue to arouse discussion.

A number of those who were present at the ceremonies at the National Cemetery were students of Gettysburg College, and have since moved to other sections of the country. Four men, still residents of Pennsylvania, have set down their reminiscences of that day when Lincoln spoke here, telling of the manner in which his address was received.

The Rev. Dr. H. C. Holloway, of Harrisburg, was a student of Gettysburg College at the time of the dedication of the National Cemetery, and was within fifty yards of the speaker's stand when Mr. Lincoln delivered his address.

"I easily heard and saw the movements of the distinguished speaker," said Doctor Holloway. "His clear, ringing voice carried his words all over that vast assembly. As the President began to speak I instinctively felt the occasion was taking on a new grandeur as of a great moment in history, and then there followed, in slow, clear, and most impressive far-reaching utterance, the words with which the whole world has since become familiar."

"We were all listening with mouth and ears open, and when Mr. Lincoln stopped we hadn't any idea he had finished. We thought he had barely commenced. There was a pause between the close of the address and the applause because the people expected him to say more."

TRIPS STEELTON FOR SECOND TIME

Gettysburg High School Comes Out on Top of 33-16 Score.

SECOND TEAM ALSO WINS

In Nip and Tuck Contest, Edison Junior High Goes Down With Colors Flying.

Better teamwork, better shooting and better guarding were responsible for the victory of Gettysburg High School's basketball team over Steelton High in a League game at the College gymnasium Saturday evening. The score was 33 to 16, the gap between the two teams widening as the game progressed.

Saturday evening's game was the second victory for the season of Gettysburg squad over the Steeltonians, the Maroon and White passers having defeated the Steelton quintet on the latter's floor several weeks ago.

Prior to the Gettysburg-Steelton game, the Gettysburg High School Reserves played a nip and tuck game with the Edison Junior High School five of Harrisburg, defeating the visitors by a score of 18 to 17. The lead throughout the contest saw-sawed back and forth between the teams, both apparently about evenly matched.

The Varsity outclassed Steelton in every department of the cage game, after the first ten minutes of play had been consumed. Gettysburg started with a rush, scoring ten points before their opponents registered a tally. At that stage of the contest, it looked as though Gettysburg was to have easy sailing.

But Steelton did the unusual. With Gettysburg ahead by ten points, the visitors held the Maroon and White (Continued on Third Page)

BOY SCOUTS WILL PROTECT PUPILS

List of Boys Who Will Guard Meade School Children's Lives.

Members of the Gettysburg school board, in an attempt to provide greater safety for the pupils of the Meade School building, due to dangerous street crossing on the highways near the school, have secured the volunteer cooperation of Boy Scouts of troop 3, Gettysburg.

Through Scoutmaster Clyde L. Bream, of Gettysburg, duty of directing traffic has been promised by members of the troop who attend the Meade School, and a schedule worked out by which one of the scouts will guard the safety of pupils going to and from school each day between February 19 and April 1. A further list will be made out later for the period from April until the close of school.

Hours of duty will be from 8:30 to 9 a. m., and from 1 to 1:30 p. m.; also from five minutes before lunch recess begins at noon, continuing until the procession has crossed the street. The same supervision will be maintained following the close of school in the afternoon.

Highway Department Warns of Delay in Sending for License

Million Drivers Will be Unable to Drive After March 1, if Present Rate of Applications Keeps Up; 50,000 Per Day Should be Sent in.

With many Adams countians still without their automobile licenses, and with still more anxiously awaiting their drivers' licenses, interest in the activities of the State highway department is running higher than at any other time of the year.

To those who have not yet applied for their 1924 drivers' license, the department warns that early application is essential, or the car will be laid up after February 29. Applications are being received at the rate of only 30,000 per day, and should be sent in at the rate of 50,000 per day or else the first of March will see a million Pennsylvania drivers without licenses.

Under the act of 1923, every operator of an automobile, whether an owner or not, must have a driver's license. This license is entirely separate and distinct from the License issued for the automobile.

Personal Examinations Begin Soon
Examinations of applicants for operators' licenses who did not hold a 1923 license will begin in every section of Pennsylvania, March 1. In some counties where the population is small these examinations will be held once each week. The newspapers of the state have already published a list of the places of examination. These include almost every county seat. Mauch Chunk, Carbon County, could not be included in the list of examination places because of the hilly nature of the town. Mauch Chunk is located in the section of Pennsylvania known as "the Alps of America." The original location chosen in Easton was changed because the hilly nature of the thoroughfare prevented a fair test of a driver's ability to handle a machine.

Examiner Sits Beside Applicant
In conducting actual tests of an applicant's ability to drive a car the examiner will sit beside the applicant and carefully observe the manner in which the car is operated, particularly those controls which are used in emergencies. The applicant should display a reasonable familiarity with all operating mechanisms and control levers. The examiner will take the applicant over a distance sufficient to convince him of the driver's ability. At some point the applicant will be required to come to a full stop and shut off his engine. The car will then be started and the applicant will be instructed to turn around by backing. Other similar operating tests will suggest themselves to the examiner.

"You must make due allowance for natural conditions of nervousness which will be experienced by many persons," said Secretary Paul D. Wright the other day to the Motor Patrolmen, "but this nervousness is easily distinguishable from actual inability."

Car Must Be In Good Condition
No applicant for a drivers' license will be examined whose car is not in proper operating condition—with approved headlighting devices, registration plates properly placed, with the rear plate illuminated as required by law; breaks must be in good working condition; in the case of deaf applicants cars must be equipped with a mirror.

Where To Get Blanks
Persons who wish applications for drivers' licenses and cannot procure them from notaries, or justices, or from local offices of the State Highway department will receive them immediately if they write the State Highway department at Harrisburg.

Cable Tests Filmed
Tests of cable railings recently conducted near Harrisburg by attaches of the State Highway department and the Federal Bureau of Roads were filmed by the latter Bureau. Of particular interest to engineers is the slow-motion film.

In these tests heavily loaded trucks were crashed against sections of the Department's standard guard railings, in which two strands of three-quarter inch cable are used. Despite the impact, this railing was found highly satisfactory and will be used by the Department in all except very dangerous locations.

DENBY QUILTS UNDER FIRE

Resignation as Secretary of Navy Accepted by Coolidge.

ROOSEVELT WILL STAY

Makes Announcement, in Spite of Superior's Retirement; Action Follows Conference With President.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, Feb. 18.—Edwin B. Denby has resigned as Secretary of the Navy and his resignation has been accepted.

After repeatedly declaring he never would quit the cabinet under the fire of those who have criticized his part in the oil leasing program, the secretary notified President Coolidge this morning that he was ready to step out.

Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, announced after an hour's conference with President Coolidge today that he would not resign as a result of the retirement of Mr. Denby.

Secretary Denby's decision followed a telephone consultation between the President and Mr. Denby in which all the latest aspects of the situation were talked over in the light of information passed on to the White House by Republican leaders in the Senate.

Recently a number of the secretary's friends also has been consulted by Mr. Coolidge and they are understood to have advised the President that they fully understood the embarrassment that might result in retaining Mr. Denby in the cabinet while the oil suits are in progress.

Not only is he a part to the oil leases, having affixed his signature along with that of Albert B. Fall, but he repeatedly defended his part in the proceedings.

It has been pointed out to the President that it might appear inconsistent to have a member of the administration holding these views remain in office while the administration itself was moving in the courts to annul the leases on the ground that they were made without authority of the law.

The retirement of the naval secretary also revived rumors that the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty would follow within a few days.

It is expected that the effective date of Secretary Denby's resignation will be March 10.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Chairman Lenroot denied today a widely published story that sensational developments have led to the calling of a meeting today of the Senate oil committee. The chairman said there had been no change in the committee's plans and that so far as he knew the situation remains just where it was when the ten day recess was taken last Friday.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 18.—William M. Morning, 56, veteran district judge, was shot and killed today in his courtroom by Wallace G. Mallick, who in turn shot and killed himself. The judge was shot through the heart.

Wallack shot at C. F. Ryan, attorney for his wife, Matilda Wallack, who was suing him for separate maintenance, and at his wife. Neither of these shots took effect.

Judge Morning walked from his bench after he had been shot and was assisted to his room adjoining the court where he died in a few minutes. Wallack was 50 years old and a well digger.

"Do you want an attorney?" Judge Morning asked the defendant when his case was called. "No man can make me pay," Wallack cried, and pulled out his gun.

HAWAIIANS KILLED FOES BY SORCERY

Death of Aged Medicine Man Recalls Old-Time Fanaticism.

Honolulu, Feb. 18.—The ranks of the kahunas, or medicine men of old Hawaii, which have thinned steadily since the white man's invasion, have been depleted further by the recent death of Kekooai, aged Hawaiian and one of the last of the kahunas, at his home on the island of Molokai.

In olden times the purpose of the kahuna was twofold. Primarily, his duty was to heal the sick. Secondly, he would, for a consideration, "pray to death" the enemy of any of his patients or patrons.

To perform the feat it was necessary that the kahuna have some portion of the body or some article that had been next to the body of the person who was to be prayed to death. Usually this was a lock of hair.

With that in his possession the kahuna, according to legend, would perform the rites intended to result in the death of the enemy. The residents of the islands were so superstitious that the work of the kahuna usually was effective, and the victim, as soon as he discovered that he was the object of the kahuna's curse, would waste away.

Kekooai was approximately 65 years old. He was one of the most noted of the large band of kahunas who lived on Molokai, and his influence and reputation had extended to the island of Oahu, which he visited often. He was believed to be one of the last of his profession in the islands.

G. O. P. LEADERS PROPOSE 37½ P. C.

Raise Surtax Maximum in Hope of Gaining Insurgent Support.

Washington, Feb. 18.—House Republican leaders determined Sunday to boost the proposed maximum surtax rate in the revenue bill to 37½ per cent in an effort to break the deadlock in negotiations with the insurgents, who told the balance of power in the vote on the income rate schedules, which will be taken up Tuesday.

The Republicans previously had receded from the Mellon rate of 25 per cent carried in the bill and had centered on 35 per cent in an effort to unite the party against the Democratic stand for a 44 per cent maximum. The 35 per cent rate, leaders said, would win 208 Republican votes, ten less than a majority.

Two conferences Saturday with the insurgent group, however, failed to bring an agreement, the organization led by Representatives Frear and Nelson, Wisconsin, holding out for a 40 per cent surtax rate and a reduction of 50 per cent in the normal income taxes. The Mellon rates call for a 25 per cent reduction in the normal taxes. Republican organization leaders insisted Sunday they would not consent to the added normal tax reductions, which are the same as those proposed by the Democrats, because treasury estimates indicated such a cut would reduce revenue receipts below the estimated surplus on which tax revision is to be based.

Representative Berg, Republican, Ohio, who conducted a poll of the Republican delegations as to their views on the income tax schedules, said Sunday that at least four of the insurgent group, which he declared numbered ten votes, must be won over in the conferences which will be resumed today if the Republicans expect to defeat the Democratic plan. Democrats are bound by a party caucus vote to support the income rate schedules advanced by Representative Garner, Texas, and their leaders predict all but a few of the 207 members in the house will be present when the vote is taken.

General debate on the measure will close today at 4 o'clock under agreement. Chairman Green, of the ways and means committee, in charge of the bill for the majority, and Representative Garner, leading the Democratic fight, expect to start the reading of the measure immediately thereafter. The first part of the bill, over which practically no differences have developed, may be finished before Tuesday. At that time the income rates will be taken up for amendment.

BUILDING 6,000 YEARS OLD, SAID

Oldest Standing Edifice in the World Unearthed Near Abraham's Home.

IS AT TELL EL OBEID

Ancient City Was Only Four Miles From Ur of Chaldees, of Biblical Fame; Is Important Find.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—The oldest building in the world still standing above ground has been found at Tell el Obeid, Mesopotamia on the Euphrates, 200 miles southeast of Baghdad and only four miles from Ur of the Chaldees, the ancient city of Biblical fame and original home of Abraham.

The discovery was made by the joint expedition of the British Museum and the University Museum, of Philadelphia.

More Than 6,000 Years Old
The excavation of this building, a temple, has brought to light marvelous carvings of animals and men and moved the already ancient history of Babylonia back another thousand years. The building is more than 6,000 years old, and its history is placed at a period as far removed from King Tut-anh-Amen in the past as the present generation is removed from him in known history.

Announcement of the find was made Sunday by Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the University Museum, who made public the report of Dr. C. Leonard Woolley, head of the joint expedition on the banks of the Euphrates.

Oldest Royal Jewel
Dr. Gordon announced that the expedition had unearthed remarkable carvings of animals done in limestone, mosaics and even artificial flowers cut in stone. One of the choicest finds was a small golden scaraboid inscribed with the name of the builder of the temple, King A-an-hi-pad-da of Ur, who reigned 4,500 years before Christ. This is the oldest royal jewel known.

In summing up his report Dr. Woolley says: "It is no exaggeration to say that the discoveries of this season revolutionize our ideas of the early history of this country, carrying back that history by a thousand years into what were the doubtful ages of legend and giving concrete illustration of an art unguessed."

Woolley's Official Report
The official report made by Dr. Woolley follows:

"The important archaeological results obtained by the joint expedition last November at the two sites of Ur and Tell el Obeid were surpassed by the remarkable discoveries made during December. In a previous report I had given some account of the little temple at Tell el Obeid, about four miles from Ur, and had spoken of its columns overlaid with copper, its mosaic columns and decorative friezes. The excavation of the building is now complete and a far fuller idea can be got of what is by a good deal the oldest example of building construction yet found.

Details Of Building
"A broad flight of stone steps led to a platform about 20 feet high, on the south corner of which stood the temple proper, its gate tower fronting on the stairway, its facade set back from the edge of the platform so as to leave a narrow step, on which stood a row of statues of bulls sculptured in the-round. These stood some three feet high and were made of thin copper plates, beaten up over a wooden core; their heads were turned out to face the spectator and their horns were of gold."

NEWS NOTES FROM TRINITY CHURCH

Speaker at Sunday Services Makes Plea For Catawba College.

(Contributed)

The cause of Catawba College was presented by Rev. J. H. Keller Sunday morning. He has assumed the task of raising an endowment of $400,000 in order to make the Reformed college at Salisbury an "A" grade institution. $200,000 of this amount is already pledged by our church in North Carolina. The other half of the endowment is to be raised in the north and west. The speaker is very humorous. One minute he has his audience laughing; then suddenly he drives across an important truth which causes all to sit up and take serious notice. We believe that the college selected the right man for this colossal task and that the entire amount will be raised by September next. Rev. Keller made a hit with the people of Trinity.

The Church School celebrated Foreign Mission Day. A number of the organizations and members of the church have made a special contribution to immediate needs in Japan.

The newly organized choir under the leadership of Felix Robinson made a splendid showing Sunday. Mr. Robinson is planning some special musical programs.

Ladies' Aid meets with Mrs. Sue Butt, Baltimore street.

The ladies of the church will have a Rummage Sale in the vacant store room owned by Mark Eckert, Centre Square, Thursday, beginning at 9 a. m.

Training for leadership class, Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m.

Look For Juvenile Court

HAGERSTOWN — Hagerstown's juvenile court will become a reality if a bill pending before the Legislature is passed. The bill was introduced in the House several days ago by Delegate Snyder and has been referred to the Washington County delegation for consideration. The favorable report of the delegation is practically assured and in the event they report favorably upon the question the passage of the bill is certain. The bill provides an additional Magistrate for Hagerstown. This Magistrate would preside in the Juvenile Court and could assist the regular Magistrates in their work in the event it became necessary to do so. For some time the need of a Juvenile Court for Hagerstown and Washington county has been apparent. During the past two years many business and professional men have favorably inclined to the project and are giving it their support.

Its inventor has patented a refrigerator so mounted on hinges outside a window that it can be swung to one side to leave the window opening clear.

PROSECUTIONS IN OIL CASE START

Walsh, Leading Prober, Confers With Pomerene on First Steps.

HALT OIL OPERATIONS

Confirmation of Roberts as Counsel is Expected in Spite of Opposition to Pomerene's Associate.

Washington, Feb. 18.—First steps toward the prosecution of those criminally involved in the oil frauds will be taken this week by special counsel representing the United States government. Simultaneously injunction proceedings will be instituted to prevent further operation by private oil interests, pending determination by the courts of the legality of the leases of the naval reserves.

Week-end developments have been so momentous that Senator Walsh, of Montana, outstanding figure in the senate investigation, has indefinitely postponed his contemplated trip to North Carolina for a few days rest. Senator Walsh and former Senator Atlee Pomerene held long conference throughout the day, while representatives of the committee conferred with attorneys for Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher and intimate friend of the late President Harding. Sunday night Walsh and Pomerene met again to consider the reports of those who had talked with McLean's counsel. Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, Walsh's colleague, participated in one or more of the conferences.

Mr. McLean's representatives are understood to have indicated that the Washington publisher wishes to help in every way possible. Circumstances are such, however, that he desires to know in advance whether the committee and the special counsel will receive his cooperation in a friendly spirit.

Roberts' Confirmation Expected
The confirmation of Atlee Pomerene as special counsel by the senate Saturday night opened the way for this preparation of legal evidence to support criminal indictment by a special federal grand jury here.

Although there is certain to be a fight in the senate today on the confirmation of Pomerene's associate, Owen J. Roberts, of Philadelphia, indications are that opposition senators will be unable to block favorable action. Even should the senate decline to confirm Roberts there would be hardly a hitch in the legal proceedings, as President Coolidge is ready to submit still another nominee in order that there may be no delay. Side by side with the legal steps taken by the special counsel for the government will move the searching inquiry of the senate investigating committee to develop new evidence and to compel reluctant witnesses to reveal what they know of the circumstances surrounding the leasing to private interests of the navy's oil reserves.

WOMAN FOUND TIED AFTER ROOM PARTY

Bound With Silk Stockings, Towel Over Head, She Tells Police.

New York, Feb. 18.—The police are becoming alarmed over the number of cases of women being found bound and gagged after house parties. Another incident of this kind was reported Sunday.

Miss Olga Morton, 24, told police a man pounded on the door of her apartment at 10 o'clock. She slipped out of bed and opened the door. The intruder lunged at her and she lost consciousness, she said, until her negro maid, Mabel Perry, returned an hour later and found her on the floor. Her arms had been bound with her own silk stockings and her face muffled in a towel.

Only Knows He Was White
A police captain asked if the man was "black or white?" Miss Morton, who was hysterical, said the intruder was white.

A physician found bruises on Miss Morton's wrists, which, she said, were made when she was bound.

Miss Morton said she was married to an employee of the Chemical National Bank last September; that she lived with him one day, quit and took an apartment in West Forty-sixth street.

Says Man Followed Her
Saturday night, she told the police captain and the doctor, she went to a party in another apartment. About a dozen persons were there. She left at 3. Shortly afterward someone knocked on her door—one of the guests had followed her upstairs. She declined to admit the man, for whom detectives are searching.

Her maid came later in the morning, and after she had swept up Miss Morton's apartment returned home to cook breakfast, she says, for her daughter. She told the police captain that when she returned she found Miss Morton bound and gagged. Nothing in the apartment had been disturbed and Miss Morton reports none of her valuables missing.

Held together by a spring, auxiliary jaws have been invented to convert a smooth faced vise into a pipe vise.

TELL OF LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG

pected more; but when it was apparent that the address was really concluded, the applause was intensely hearty, rising like the sound of many waters.

Close Came Suddenly
M. W. Jacobs, former judge of the Dauphin County courts, was within twenty feet of the President when he arose to speak. "I was a great admirer of President Lincoln," said Judge Jacobs, "and I was so intent upon what the President was saying and doing, that I couldn't pay any attention to anybody or anything else."

Judge Jacobs' brother, Doctor Jacobs of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, had a position in front of the platform and stood very near where the President was sitting. Edward Everett, the principal orator of the day, preceded President Lincoln with a speech two hours long. When the time came for Abraham Lincoln to speak, the people were tired although they had shown wonderful patience during Mr. Everett's long address. The President's speech was so different from what they had naturally expected, they didn't know how to take it.

"The deep feeling of the speaker, combined with masterful self-control and firmly set purpose, made a profound impression. There was something so unusual in the tones of his voice and in his mode of address, that long before those present were ready to weigh his words, he had finished. His remarks were limited to nine sentences. The suddenness with which he ended was almost startling. All told there were only 250 words spoken and just two minutes were occupied in their delivery."

The close of the address came so suddenly and unexpected that for a few brief seconds the people stood spellbound and applauded only when they discovered he had really finished. Dr. Charles Baum, of Philadelphia, said he was a boy of 10, when President Lincoln made his memorable address. He was quite close to the platform and was so tired of listening to Edward Everett he could scarcely stand. Because he was such a little fellow, and because he was so tired, he was allowed to sit on an unoccupied bench that was really intended for some of the dignitaries of the occasion. He remembers when President Lincoln arose to speak, he thought, "Oh, Gee! there comes another long-winded speech." But Doctor Baum was as agreeably surprised as every one else was, although he couldn't understand anything of the importance of the short address he had just heard.

Only a few could understand them how great that speech really was. Edward Everett was one, and he prophesied that the President's few words would live long after his own address was forgotten, a prophecy that has been fulfilled to the letter.

five to its score while they ran up nine points. Then the Maroon and White players, alarmed at the approach of the Steelton machine, got down to business, holding the visitors to their haul, while they ran their own score to 14, where it was at half time.

Close guarding on the part of Little and Miller, Gettysburg guards, in the second half was largely responsible for Steelton's inability to score more than two field goals during the period. The BRANDING IRON

by Katharine
Newlin
Burt

Toward morning, dawn feeling with white fingers through the pine boughs into her uncurtained window. Joan stopped her weeping and stood up. She was very tired and felt as though all the hardness and strength had been beaten from her heart. She opened her door and looked at pale stars and a still, slowly brightening world. In a hollow below the pines a stream ran and poured its hoarse, hurrying voice into the silence. Joan bent under the branches, undressed and bathed. The icy water shocked life back into her spirit. She began to think and to glow. In spite of herself she felt happier. She had been stony for so long, neither sorrowful nor glad; now, after the night of sharp pain, she was aware of the gladness of morning. She came up from her plunge, glowing and beautiful, with loose, wet hair.

In the corral the men were watering their teams; above them on the edge of a mesa, against the rosy sky, the other ponies, out all night on the range, were trooping, driven by a cowboy who darted here and there on his nimble pony, giving shrill cries. In the clear air every syllable was sharp to the ear, every tint and line sharp to the eye. It was beautiful, and very beautiful, and it was near and dear to her, native to her—this loveliness of quick action, of inarticulate calling to dumb beasts, of work, of simple, often repeated beginnings. She was glad that she was working with her hands. She twisted up her hair and went over to the ranch-house where she began soberly and thankfully to light her kitchen fire.

It was after breakfast, two or three mornings later, when a stranger on a chestnut pony rode into Yarnall's ranch, tied his pony to a tree, and, striding across the cobbled square, came to knock at the office door. At the moment, Yarnall, on the other side of the house, was saying farewell to his guests, and helping the men pile the baggage into the two-seated wagon, so this other visitor, getting no answer to his knock, turned and looked about the court. He did not, it was evident, mind waiting. It was to be surmised from the look of him that he was used to it; patient and not to be discouraged by delay. He was a very brown young man of quite astounding beauty and his face had been schooled to keenness and restraint. He was well-dressed, very clean, an outdoor man, a rider, but a man who had, in some sense, arrived. He had the inimitable stamp of achievement. He had been hard driven—the look of that, too, was there; he had been driven to more than ordinary effort. One of the men, seeing him, walked over and spoke respectfully.

"You want to see Mr. Yarnall?"
"Yes, sir." The man's eyes were searching the ranch-house wistfully again. "I would like to see him if I can. I have some questions to ask him."

"He's round the house, gettin' rid of a bunch of duds. Some job. Both hands tied up. Will you go round or wait?"

The Stranger Dropped to His Heels, Squatted, and Rolled a Cigarette.

The stranger dropped to his heels, squatted, and rolled a cigarette. "I'll wait," he murmured. "You can let him know when the duds make their get-away. He'll get round to me. My name? It won't mean anything to him—Pierre Landis."

He did not go round the house, and Yarnall, being very busy and perturbed for some time after the departure of his guests, did not get round to him till nearly noon. By that time he was sitting on the step, his back against the wall, still smoking and still wistfully observant of his surroundings.

He stood up when Yarnall came. "Good," said the latter, "that fool boy didn't tell me you were here till ten minutes ago. Come in. You'll stop for dinner—if we get any today."

"Thank you," said Pierre.

He came in and talked and stayed for dinner. Yarnall was used to the western fashion of doing business. He knew that it would be a long time before the young man would come to his point. But the Englishman was in no hurry, for he liked his visitor and found his talk diverting enough. Landis had been in Alaska—a lumber camp. He had risen to be foreman, and now he was off for a vacation, but had to go back soon. He had been everywhere. It seemed to Yarnall that the stranger had visited every ranch in the Rocky mountain belt.

After dinner, strolling beside his host toward his horse, Pierre spoke, and before Yarnall had heard a word he knew that the long delay had been caused by suppressed emotion. Pierre, when he did ask his question, was white to the lips.

"I've taken a lot of your time," he said slowly. "I came to ask you about some one. I heard that you had a woman on your ranch, a woman who came in and didn't give you any history. I want to see her if I may."

He was actually fighting an unevenness of breath, and Yarnall, sympathetic suspense. "I want," stammered the young man, "to know her name."

Yarnall swore. "Her name, as she gave it," said he, "is Jane. But, my boy, you can't see her. She left this morning."

Pierre raised a white, tense face. "Left?" He turned as if he would run after her.

"Yes, sir. These people I've had here took her away with them. That is, they've been urging her to go, but she'd refused. Then, suddenly, this morning, just as they were putting the trunks in, up came Jane, white as chalk, asking them to take her with them, said she must go. Well, sir, they rigged her up with some traveling clothes and drove away with her. That was six hours ago. By now they're in the train, bound for New York."

Yarnall's guest looked at him without speaking, and Yarnall nervously went on, "She's been with us about six months, Landis, and I don't know anything about her. She was tall, gray eyes, black hair, slow speaking, and with the kind of voice you'd be apt to notice . . . yes, I see she's the girl you've been looking for. I can give you the New York people's address, but first, for Jane's sake—I'm a pretty good friend of hers, I think a lot of Jane—I'll have to know what you want with her—what she is to you."

A "BIBLE FOR CHILDREN"
Those who have experimental knowledge of child-psychology will be inclined to smile at the notion of a lot of English scholars at Cambridge university getting out a "Bible" abridged for the use of children. "Passages considered irrelevant or unsuitable for children will be omitted," we are told, and "the new edition will be about two-thirds the size of the authorized Scriptures."
We suppose Joseph's coat of many colors will be left in. How about Jacob's killing of Siserah? How about the death spectacle of Absalom? How about Samson slaying his thousands with the jawbone of an ass? How about the dramatic elimination of Goliath?
Little David with a sling
At great Goliath he did fling,
Hit great Goliath on the head,
And great Goliath dropped down dead.

Also how about the prophet, the infantile humorist who cried "Go up thou Baldhead," and the three she-bears that ate the children up! How, indeed, about the first murder by Cain and the anti-Volsteadism of Father Noah? All of these incidents would be elided by movie-censors in our age. Are they to be elided by the Cambridge scholars? If not, why not?
When the Baldheads get up a "Bible" for the small boy they must please the small boy or they toil is unavailing. We are quite sure that the small boy does on David, slights for Samson and admires Absalom hanging by his long hair to a tree. The "Good Old-Fashioned Bible" may be good enough for him after all.

Frederick
Argue On Sugar Corn Price
FREDERICK—Representatives appointed by the Farm Bureaus of Frederick, Howard and Carroll counties gathered at the hotel in Mt. Airy to discuss and endeavor to reach a price for sugar corn during the coming season. The committee representing Frederick county was composed of George B. Hoke, chairman; E. V. Speaks, Harry L. Davis, George Harmon, Daniel J. Thomas and County Agent P. W. Chichester. Frederick Fuller, county agent of Carroll county and Miles Fairbanks, county agent of Howard county, also attended with the delegations from their respective counties. There was considerable discussion concerning the price to be asked for sugar corn this year, and the representatives of the three counties seemed unable to agree. According to the last reports received, it seemed likely that the session would continue.

Dividends Are Paid
FREDERICK—More than 1,000 stockholders in the Frederick Hotel Company have received checks for their first dividend on stock purchased by them from the time of payments until January 1, 1923. The checks were mailed Thursday by Edwin C. Markell, treasurer of the company. There are more than 1,100 stockholders in the hotel company but not all of these received dividend checks as there were some who did not complete their payments during the period of time for which the dividend was payable. The amount of money paid out by the hotel company in dividends was in excess of $23,300, stated Mr. Markell. Some of the dividend checks were for only a few cents, it was said.

Bridge Commission Meets
FREDERICK—One of the concluding steps towards taking over the two bridges spanning the Potomac river at Brunswick and Virginia took place when the members of the Potomac River Bridge Commission met at the office of John N. Mackall, chairman, in Baltimore at 11 o'clock. The object of the meeting was to hear the report of the purchase committee, which met with representatives of the bridge owners in this city some time ago to reach a price agreement.

Just Folks
by Edgar A. Guest
We were walking, Bud and I,
When the rascal chanced to spy
Another little fellow with a pretty little miss;
To my shame and my disgrace,
With a grin upon his face
He started in to taunt them with a line of talk like this:
"Hello, Jimmy! Got a girl,
With a pretty little curl!
Jimmy's got a sweetheart and his brain is full of mush!
Look at Jimmy out with Winnie,
And she's bow-legged and she's skinny!"
Then I caught him by the shoulder
and I whispered to him:
"Hush!"
"Ha!" he shouted, "Jimmy kissed her!
And she's going to have a blister!
Jimmy's got a sweetheart and I'm going to tell her name.
As a bean-pole she's a daisy,
And she's crosseyed and she's crazy!"
And he greeted me with laughter when I said to him: "For shame!"
You may think such talk is brutal,
But I answer you, it's futile
To attempt to teach politeness to a small boy's ready tongue.
"Boys are boys," I tell his mother,
"That's the way they treat each other;
That's the sort of stuff we shouted in the days when we were young."
"Work or Fight" was the war slogan and now we are doing both.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SALE

February 16th to 29th Inclusive

During this month of birthdays of famous American patriots, our thoughts turn to the principles upon which their successes were based—honesty—fair dealing—integrity. And the thought came to us, "Why not make this great selling event a George Washington Sale, for our principle of merchandising underlying the goods and prices is honesty and fair-dealing." So this is a George Washington Sale. It includes every piece of merchandise in the store and every article has been marked down to cost and in many instances below that figure. This is an honest-to-goodness sale, friends, absolutely on the level, our regular lines of goods at unheard of prices.

Here's the Reason for the Wonderful Bargains

In many lines of our merchandise, our stock is heavy. The open winter season has naturally reduced the volume of buying and left us with goods that positively must be sold. Frankly, we are in need of money with which to buy spring goods. To bring in funds and clear out goods, at one swoop we have cut down prices, just as surely as George Washington, when a boy, cut down his father's cherry tree, and we have cut our prices down to cost and less. Honestly, folks, you will not have this money saving opportunity again for a long, long time.

Franklin

May Find Potato Market

CHAMBERSBURG.—A market for 10,000 bushels of Franklin potatoes is in sight as the result of a communication received by Farm Agent Knoke from R. R. Burtner, farm agent of Dauphin county. It is likely that a survey of the county will be made to determine whether the needed amount of potatoes is available and whether the county owners will dispose of their potatoes at the price to be named. Farm Agent Knoke said Friday morning that it is likely that there are ten thousand bushels of potatoes in the county among the recognized growers, many of whom have not disposed of the year's harvest. This inability to dispose of their potatoes at prices they desire has caused some discontent among county potato growers. One large-scale grower, who has about two thousand bushels on hand, refused to sell at 90 cents a bushel, stating that his demand was $1. The county market is fairly well saturated with potatoes, but the larger city markets still are open. This condition has placed the comparatively small grower at a disadvantage because he is not in a position to ship by the carload and consequently cannot, without leaguely with a number of growers on the same scale, get his product to the market.

CHAMBERSBURG.—Bids totaling $52,530 for erection of additions to two school buildings—the Buchanan and Broad street buildings—were awarded at the last meeting of the school board. Cump, contractor, at $19,475; the heating and ventilating contract, to the Chambersburg Construction Co., at $5,047, and the plumbing contract to the same company for $1,172. The electrical work was given to the Chambersburg Electric Service Co. at $836, making a total for the erection of the four-room addition to the Broad street building was awarded to E. M. Milk Creditors to Meet

CHAMBERSBURG.—A meeting of farmers of the county, particularly of the Williamson section, will be held at that place in the interests of combining efforts to recoup insofar as possible the losses confronting milk producers of that section through the bankruptcy of the Pennsylvania Milk Products Co. TEMPLE TOPPLES GETTYSBURG FIVE Loose Playing on Part of College Responsible For Defeat.

Playing loose basketball, the Gettysburg College quintet lost its contest with Temple University here Saturday afternoon by the score 26 to 21. Time after time the Orange and Blue passers missed "peep" shots which if converted would have changed the complexion of the score considerably.

The game was one of the events of the Junior Prom season and a large number of Juniors and Seniors and their ladies were present.

Early in the contest, Barbour, Gettysburg's clever guard, had the misfortune to badly sprain his ankle. This will keep him out of the game for the remainder of the season. Barbour had dribbled down the floor and jumped with the ball as he neared the basket. He misjudged his distance from the wall and when he came down his foot was in such a position as to cause a sprain of the ankle.

Between halves he was taken to the Warner Hospital where two X-ray pictures disclosed a severe sprain, although no bones were broken. "Junie" Bream was put into the breach. He is expected to keep the position for the remainder of the season. Barbour is able to be around on crutches, but he was told at the Hospital that it would be at least four weeks before he would be able to participate in another basketball game. The College season closes March 4.

Emanuel and Gerhart were the shining lights for Gettysburg, while Sims, Courtney and Rees starred for Temple.

Following is the lineup:
Gettysburg Positions Temple
Emanuel forward Sims
Peduzzi forward Courtney
Gerhart center Rees
Fisher guard Shair
Barbour guard Chapman
Substitutions—Bream for Barbour, Stouffer for Peduzzi, Sims for Shair, Hackman for Sims. Field goals—Emanuel, 3; Peduzzi, Gerhart, 3; Bream, Sims, 6; Courtney, Rees, 2; Chapman 4. Foul goals—Emanuel, Peduzzi, Gerhart, 2; Fisher. Referee—Taggart, of Steelton.
